Town Council

Library board needs new members

Elk Point's Municipal Library Board is in serious need of three to five more members to fill vacancies on the Board, Council was told Monday night. The Board can have a maximum of ten members, but due to losses through resignations and terms coming to an end, has shrunk to five, a small number considering the size of the operation the Board controls. Council's representative to the Board, Adele Mandryk, who is past Chairperson of the Board, said the Board is comfortable operating with eight members, but would prefer a full roster of ten.

Members of the Board have attempted to attract interested individuals to join, but to date have met with little success. Some interest was expressed by rural residents, but Board guidelines only allow one member from out of town, and this position is already filled by Board Chairperson Louise Krissa. Town residents interested in becoming part of the Library Board are invited to submit letters of application to the Board in care of the Town, or to contact Ms Krissa or Ms Mandryk.

Monday's meeting came on the heels of International Literacy Week, and included another item pertaining to libraries, this time an update on the Northern Lights Library System meeting attended by Councillor Charlie Mahon. Mahon said that the System, which did not receive the establishment grant earlier promised by the Province, is in severe financial straits, and has borrowed small amounts from two other library systems to keep operating. Northern Lights has now been offered half of the startup grant given to the Chinook Arch Library System, which has to wait for Northern Lights to become established before it can get underway.

Mahon feels that Elk Point "may as well stay in" the System at this point, since there is apparently no cost or obligation involved in doing so. "The whole thing is contingent on the establishment grant," Mahon said. If Northern Lights receives this, "all boats will float." Council was somewhat concerned with the possibility of being liable for some of the loans obtained from other systems, and directed the Administrator to contact both the Town's solicitor and the Northern Lights chairperson to determine what Elk Point's responsibilities are in this regard.

Tourism was also high on Council's agenda, with preparations for the 1992 Bicentennial of Fort George-Buckingham House under discussion. Council had originally been asked by the Tourism Action Committee, in mid 1989, to establish an ad hoc committee to spearhead planning for the event, and had subsequently contacted the Historical Society, who indicated they would be interested in doing so. Since the Historical Society's interests are mainly on events at the forts themselves, it has been suggested that another committee be established to promote and organize activities throughout the community which will complement the events at the forts. Councillor Adele Mandryk offered to come forward and act as a hub for such a subcommittee, which Council felt could be established under the Celebrations Committee. The subcommittee will have full executive powers, and will report to the Celebrations Committee. Representatives from the Historical Society, Chamber of Commerce and Tourism Action Committee will be invited to become part of the Bicentennial Subcommittee.

Councillor Allan Frankiw reported on behalf of the Tourism Action Committee, which is presently studying four potential sites for the Tourist Information Centre, along with new signage and a theme relating to the Bicentennial. The TAC feels that these three matters should be consolidated into a package before being presented to Council.

Elk Point Public Works Department will soon be sporting a new backhoe, with Council approving the purchase of a JCB 1550B 4-wheel drive backhoe, with immediate possession and

A Head Start On Literacy

Among the youngest visitors to Elk Point Public Library's Read-In last Friday were (left to right) Natasha Kutryk, Matthew Alexander and Megan Miller, all of whom are getting an early exposure to books and the pleasure of reading, a sure sign that literacy will be a part of their lives from here on.

Crystal ball conference a success

By Irene Magnusson

The annual Fall Conference of Region 2, Alberta Council on Aging (ACA), titled the Crystal Ball Conference, held at the Elk Point Pioneer Circle, is over. Monday, September 10, saw some 80 persons in attendance at the day long gathering, convening from such distant areas as Consort, Lac La Biche, Athabasca, Cold Lake, Edmonton and points between.

Welcoming all visitors were Morris Cooper, President of the pioneer Circle, on behalf of Elk Point seniors, Mayor Bruce Kleeberger, for the Town of Elk Point, and Paul Poty, ACA Region 2 Chairman. Poty introduced each speaker as they came to the mike.

A look into the future for seniors, the theme of the conference, was realized by an outline of possibilities in seniors' housing, with emphasis on usability by the elderly and the desire of most seniors to live on in their own homes. Doug Denise of AMHC outlined the futuristic thinking on this, while deploring the unsuitability for use by disabled or feeble persons of many modern home designs—almost as if their owners never planned to get old.

Duncan Mitchell, ACA, of Consort, stressed the continual growth in percentages of seniors in the population. The need for a strong voice for seniors grows, with ACA filling the role well in Alberta; still, with more members the voice would be better heard. "Seniors don't cooperate well," he pointed out, and sometimes don't communicate at all.

Paul Poty of St. Paul, President of Region 2, ACA, outlined the role ACA can play in local, area, region and provincial matters, stating that seniors should address any problems to their local Director, who will carry the concern along.

Sgt. Barry Kutryk of Elk Point RCMP spoke on the concerns for their personal safety felt by many seniors, whether real or imagined. He said 'rip-off' schemes and scams are occasionally practiced on seniors, but not as often as some fear. These could be countered by consulting with friends or family members, or the RCMP before cash is handed over or deals signed. Sgt. Kutryk expressed a desire to address the seniors of Elk Point on a series of 'Safety and Security' measures at some future date.

Mona Romanchuk of the North Eastern Alberta Health Unit in St. Paul delved deeply into the concept of aging, citing the chronological (years), the physical (we are as old/young as we feel), and according to law, i.e., age of maturity, enforced retirement, etc. There could be five times as many "old, old" (over 85) seniors, in 20 years' time, she estimated.

Many of these seniors will remain in their own homes, with some aids, 'Respite' care being one such aid. Other thoughts were on housing, health and transportation—problems which worry seniors. Asked how many in the audience considered themselves old, none of the 80 seniors raised his or her hand. We see others as old—but not ourselves. With more emphasis on self-help and self-care, along with government aid where necessary, seniors can adapt to change, and continue in useful and satisfactory life, Romanchuk predicted.

Following the nutrition-planned luncheon, served by Prime Cut Caterers of Elk Point, of low sodium, low cholesterol, high fibre, high energy foods especially planned with assistance from Charlotte Engstrom, Dietician at Elk Point Municipal Hospital, to help illustrate that good nutritious food need not be dull, the conference continued.

Ray Lafleur and Judy Barlow, with an outline of the "Rainbow Report", a condensation of the Alberta Government's commission into health care, showed a video. This touched on the proposed future plans, how health care costs could be cut. These costs are now tremendously high. After an information packed presentation, the audience was broken into discussion groups, each group later bringing their concerns out. The highlights of the Report appear to be: the division of health care areas into local zones; the Smart Card—all health information on computer chips; a healthy lifestyle (nutrition, exercise, etc.); establishment of Living Wills; insured basic health care for all.

Questions and comments dealt with how to obtain and keep doctors in rural areas; too many facilities, not enough doctors; too much 'red tape': acquiring doctors; equipment costs; cost of 'Smart Cards' and loss of confidentiality. Discussion was lively.

Sid Holthe of Elk Point, who was the organizer of the conference, wound up the day with a brief summary of each speaker's offering, and appreciation to all who partook in any way.

Readers log 3450 minutes

Readers in Elk Point logged a total of 3450 minutes at the books last Friday, during the Read-In Challenge. At F. G. Miller High School, approximately half of the students took part, with 176 individuals reading for the required 15 minutes. Elk Point Public Library had 54 readers on their tally sheet. Elk Point Elementary School, whose new library facilities are presently under construction, did not take part in the Read-in, but instead encouraged their students to visit the Public Library and register there.

payment deferred until January 1, 1991.

A number of the organizations which were approached regarding appointment of a representative to the Community Services Centre Building Committee have ratified these appointments, Council was told. Elk Point and District Lions Club has appointed Marshall Kachmar, while the BPO Elks have appointed Dave Yake. Stephen Montgomery will represent the Community Services Board, Paul Stepa the Pioneer Circle, and Sgt. Barry Kutryk the Elk Point Ukrainian Dance Club. Councillor Louis Verhagen will represent the Town. Appointments have not been confirmed by the Chamber of Commerce, Lioness Club and the County of St. Paul. It was suggested that the Masonic Lodge might also wish to have a representative on the committee.

A request was received from the Mayor of Lac La Biche, Tom Maccagno, that the Town of Elk Point pass a companion resolution petitioning the Ministers of Tourism, and Parks and Recreation, to establish a joint advisory council to insure grassroots input and an integrated approach to the preparation of the Lakeland Tourism Destination Resort Plan and the proposed Lakeland Provincial Park and Provincial Recreation Area. Council moved to instruct the administration to prepare such a resolution, as the formation of such an advisory body would give Elk Point and other communities a means of input into the planning for this major development, which would have a wide impact on north-eastern Alberta.

Council wound up their meeting with a review of resolutions which will come before the 84th Annual AUMA Convention next week, and which will be attended by Councillor Adele Mandryk and Administrator Pat Vincent.

Pioneer Circle plans fund-raiser

By Irene Magnusson

The Elk Point seniors' club, the Pioneer Circle, held their first Directors' Meeting of the season, September 11, with a fair turnout. The minutes of the last meeting, June 5, were read by secretary Grace Barwick, and accepted, with additional information regarding the Seniors' Week program, held June 8, and report of the Building Committee meeting of June 11. At that time it was learned there would be no recreation complex, and some safety measures were required for the hall, such as additional fire extinguishers.

The treasurer's report was received. Campsite workers have been paid, as funds were received. Bingos continue going strong, averaging a profit of about $ 75 per week.

Twenty five persons attended the pre-Heritage Day supper. It had been decided not to participate in the Information Night program.

President Morris Cooper mentioned that RCMP Sgt. Kutryk would like to address the seniors on the subject of safety and protection. The group was not able to agree on a time or subject, so the matter was tabled.

Bingo committee members stated a shortage of those willing to work; although there are a total of 109 members, few wish to give their time and energy to help conduct the bi-weekly bingos. Lively discussion ensued. Some accommodation was worked out.

Cooper again mentioned the rotten steps on the hall—they must be repaired. There was a $ 38 repair job done on the sink—it still leaks.

Phyllis Zarowny, tireless fundraiser via the bingos, suggested another plan to bring in funds for the Building Account. Her suggestion to hold a 'garage sale' met with little resistance, excepting that Thursdays are floor curling days. It was agreed that this could be cancelled for the one occasion, and the dates of Thursday and Friday, September 20 and 21, would be allotted to the sale, to take place in the Drop-In Centre, from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. of each day. Members were urged to bring articles for sale, and volunteers were lined up to help on both days. The phoning committee will be pressed into service—and all donations gratefully accepted.

One member spoke of a proposed 'lifetime membership' in the seniors group, but little was understood about the project, and although Elk Point is purported to have the second highest ratio of seniors to population in the country, it has a fairly low participation ratio, as far as the Pioneer Circle goes.

Reports from the Building Committee will be expected at the next meeting, which will be October 9, at 2:00 p.m.

For whom the bell tolls

By Margaret Modin

On September 4, 1990, as students and teachers alike assembled at the Elk Point Elementary and F. G. Miller Junior - Senior High Schools, 12 teachers and spouses gathered in the banquet room at the Empress Restaurant to rejoice over the fact that they did not have to answer the call and to reminisce about days gone by.

At precisely 10 to 9, Irene Melin recited the following poem:

*Just up the hill, the school bell calls,
And teachers hurry along the halls,
Minds boggled by lesson plans and goals,*

Let's toast those for whom the bell tolls.

All present drank a toast to those up the hill.

Enjoying the breakfast together were John and Bea Williams, Sid and Muriel Holthe, Keith and Louise Larson (soon to head south), Gwen Nelson (newly retired this year), Irene Melin, Vera Romanchuk, Lawrence and Margaret Modin.

Irene had on hand the newly published book of stories written by retired teachers of Alberta and edited by Anne Lindgren, titled "Classroom Classics." Several of those present chose and read stories from this book and told a few of their own not in the book.

Our thanks to Irene and Muriel for organizing the details of this delightful time together.

In Our View

Frost on the pumpkin

Many of us woke yesterday to see a white world, with what for many was the first frost of the season. Yes, folks, fall is upon us once again.

It is sad to see our plants drooping and turning black, with left-to-grow-awhile cucumbers and tomatoes exposed by the shriveled leaves, making us wonder why we didn't go on one more picking expedition rather than watching television last evening. But in many cases, it also puts an end to the questions of who to give yet another pail of tomatoes to, where to find some more jars for dills, and will those zucchinis never STOP? Most of us have already harvested as much as we wanted of everything, and then some. Now we can give up without feeling guilty. Not that the garden season is over--there are still potatoes to dig, carrots and beets and turnips to pull, before hard frosts lock in the land for winter.

We are deep into harvest, with combines everywhere gobbling swaths, long after the warm sun-filled day has turned into night, lighted by sweeping northern lights. Bales are being hauled and stacked for winter needs, and thoughts of fall cultivation enter the minds of farmers who hope, for once, to get the crop all off before the snow flies.

This is perhaps the most beautiful time of year, when green trees are touched with gold, rose hips turn scarlet, and the pines suddenly stand out among the summer's poplar camouflage. The glory of autumn makes one wish for a paintbrush, or a camera, to record the short-lived scene.

People are sure to tell you, at this time of year, that winter is just around the corner, and that we are all bound to rush to complete a multitude of projects before the snow flies. Don't let them depress you. Certainly winter will come--it always has, and there is no reason to expect this year would be radically different from those which have gone before. But there is no reason to worry about it beforehand. Why not take time to enjoy what glorious days we have left, while we have them?

On the other hand, it COULD just be a good idea to bring in those chimpanzee sculptures....just in case!

The Ageless Forest

Days, marked by calendars, flow by, four years worth of them, since I walked the forest of Mundy Park, in Coquitlam, B.C., among the giants of today, and the remains of greater giants of yesteryear.

Counting the days

By Irene Magnusson

Counting the days is the job of our calendars, week by week, month by month, year by year. In our subconscious minds, we allot the days to various tasks, how we are to feel on a given morning, as we rise and face that day.

Remember, long ago, when Monday was washday, Tuesday ironing day, Wednesday for shopping--on down the line to Saturday, for scrubbing and cleaning (the night for the weekly bath) and Sunday, the day of worship and rest?

I'm sure we divide our days much differently now, what with automatic washers, no-iron materials, shopping 7 days and 7 nights per week--and who ever gets a rest anymore?

Still--certain days are for certain things: Monday, the kids off to school, Wednesday we play Bingo. And what about TGIF? (Thank God It's Friday!) I presume that to mean pay day, and the close of a long and tiring week. About the middle of August, there starts a calendar count-down, of how many shopping days until Christmas.

Our calendars are used for other things, too, than just to score off the days and weeks. Calendars show us when the moon will be new, when it will fill with molten silver bright enough to flood our nights with magic, our hearts with romance and our souls with the mysteries of the universe. Did you ever stop to think that the moon shows full on different days around our earthly planet?

On my Toronto Dominion calendar, the moon cycle starts anew tonight, September 19th. But in Beautiful British Columbia, their moon was new last night, just as it will be full one whole day ahead of ours.

Comparing the two calendars more closely, I see depicted on the September page of the TD day marker, a lovely forest scene, with a ray of sunlight piercing the heavy vegetation, spilling over fallen logs and rank growth of a forest primeval--surely the forest of Mundy Park, in Coquitlam, a sector of Vancouver, in--yes--Beautiful British Columbia. A forest I walked in, four short years ago...

Or it could be a part of Cathedral Park, in upper Vancouver Island, where some of the massive, towering Douglas fir are said to be 800 years old. Or...well, Alberta farmlands it is not.

The September scene on my Beautiful BC calendar is of a placid mirror lake, reflecting rugged Rockies, cloud-flecked blue sky and the blaze-yellow-among-evergreens of a foothills forest running up from lichen covered rocky shores. It says it is Yoho National Park.

Regardless of what decorates a calendar, its use is the same, to count our days. And a fine time, over the years, the experts have had in sorting out the days, trying to eke order from the chaos the Creator of the universe left us in.

In the first place, our solar year is 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes, 46 seconds long (don't ask me who figured THAT out!), while the lunar year equals twelve 29.53-day months, for a total of 354 days, 8 hours and 48 minutes. So making those two unequal times fit together must have been a calendar designer's nightmare.

The convoluted figuring required to rationalize all these odd figures went on from time beyond time. But back in the times of Julius Caesar, in 46 B.C., he laid out the Gregorian calendar, which we use today, made over from the Roman calendar used previously. I am not going to go into the rigamarole of how they decided how many days hath September, April, June and November, etc., but you can go ahead and use that little jingle just as well as any other method to figure out how many days in any given month. Any year, A. D., divisible by four, gives you a leap year.

The business of calendarizing the phases of the moon was even more tricky; however, as it isn't as important as getting the sun's role figured out--our best bet is to look at any calendar, to see what the experts have concluded.

Various other countries and/or religions have had a go at arranging the counting of our days, but since we have this method that works well for us, we do not need to worry about them much.

Besides counting the sun's loops around the earth (or is that the earth's cycles around the sun?), so we will know what day to go to our meetings, etc., we all want to know when our own private lunar orb waxes and wanes. So--blessed are they who make calendars.

On top of all this, our year is divided--sort of--into seasons; roughly, the commencement of winter, around December 21 (although we know very well it's been around for weeks before then.) But that's the shortest day(s); after that it's all uphill. The days grow longer.

Next we mark the vernal equinox (verno being Latin for green-up) when days and nights are equal in length, and we know we've made it through the winter once again.

Beautiful June, when all is green and bright with flowers, lush with promise, brings the shortest nights, the longest days, then, almost before we know it--certainly before we are ready for it--comes the day of reckoning, usually the 21st, and we are on the downhill slope toward winter once again. Nights start getting longer, days shorter. Oh, it's only minutes at first, but we know what's coming, and it's scary.

September, when sunny, warm days dwindle down to a precious few, as the song says, and here in our clime we are well into harvest, some lucky ones are already finished, and we are watching the weathercasts very closely. In Alberta, around here, frost is to be expected by September 20th--and can come a lot sooner. But we have fallen into a warmer spell, so we may get off easy this fall (famous last words?) so today all I will predict is that the equinox will fall somewhere between September 21 and 22, and after that, the nights will progressively get longer than the days, until we slump into winter. So what? We have survived a winter or two before now. What we could be doing, one of these lazy, hazy days of autumn, is noticing the glorious colors popping up all over, contrasting them to the utter blue of our Alberta skies, perhaps notice the long lines of birdlife streaking southerly, the puffball clouds, the yellow fields, some already turning black.

We can count every day we live as a blessing, meant to be enjoyed and lived to its fullest. For this we don't really need a calendar.

Senior High Students' Union Executive

Students' union elections at FGM

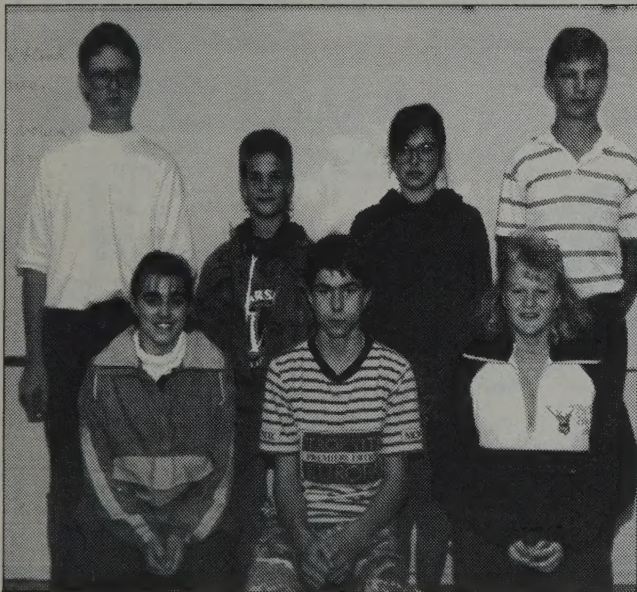

Students' Union elections were held at F. G. Miller Junior-Senior High School on the afternoon of Friday, September 14. For the first time at Miller, both a Junior and Senior executive were elected. Students' Union advisors Ray Hellquist, Cheri Lindquist and Glenda Brandingen believe that having two executives will give the Junior High students a greater opportunity to have a voice in student government.

The campaign was waged all week at school, and finished with speeches in the gym followed by the voting. The successful candidates are as follows:

Senior High--President: Wade Poitras; Vice President: Shauna Sen-iuk; Secretary: Tina Bjorkman; Treasurer: Kristin Kittlitz; Social Committee: Tobey Conrad and Brad Poitras; Sports: Steven Winkler and Tanya Kenyon. Junior High--President: Jeff Lypka; Vice President: Travis Pankiw; Secretary: Twyla Rainboth; Treasurer: Chris Kittlitz; Social Committee: Dawn Sommerville; Sports: Grant Dunlop, Tanya McLaughlin.

Friday also marked the end of Welcome Back Week. Following the elections, the students moved outdoors for a variety of activities, which included orange passing and lifesaver-toothpick relays, wheelbarrow and 3-legged races, human pyramid building, bubble gum blowing and a tug of war. The students were divided into four teams for the sporting events, with the Red Team, coached by Jim Hawkins, adding up the winning total. This was also the commemoration of the 10th annual Terry Fox Run, and a donation will be made by the school to the Cancer Society. As an added attraction, the Grade 12s had a buck-a-throw pie throwing contest, with selected teachers and Grade 12s as the targets.

What's news at the library?

Thank you to everyone who took part in the READ IN at the Library on Friday, September 14. This was a day set aside during World Literacy Week to encourage everyone to take part in a reading exercise for 15 minutes.

Did you know that about one in five adult Albertans cannot read or write well enough to function in society? That about 70 percent of the illiterate population in Canada is Canadian born and that 40 percent of that 70 percent is under 45 years of age?

Illiteracy is a very great problem and costs Canadian society approximately $10 billion annually. Insure that your children are not part of this terrible problem. Read to them and encourage them to read by bringing them to the library.

On Information Night, thirty five patrons entered their names for a book draw. Sherry Rae was the lucky winner of the draw.

NEW BOOKS:

Another of Cynthia Freeman's romantic novels Always and Forever has arrived. Unfortunately this is her final work as she is gone. In this deeply moving saga of love, Kathy Ross meets a young American physician, David Kohn, when they are on a mission to relieve the suffering in post-World-War-II Berlin. Kathy's every instinct tells her they could share a life together. But David's blind devotion to his family drives her into marriage with his dashing cousin Phil.

Alberta Women In Politics is a report made for Senator Martha Pielish by a home town boy, Michael Palamarek. This is a history of women and politics in Alberta between 1900 and 1988.

In Basic Training For Horses, English and Western Eleanor F. Price and Gaydell Collier tap their years of experience to present every aspect of basic training, from the psychological principles behind training techniques to dressage training, training to show and training for the trail.

Dollars and Sense by Arthur Drache is a complete Canadian Financial Planner. An invaluable guide to personal financing, providing today's knowledgeable consumer with the right plan of action for a financially secure tomorrow.

Hazardous wastes in your home

By Shannon D. Ebbesen

When we hear the term 'hazardous wastes' we tend to think of big industrial factories with smoke stacks pouring pollution into the air. Very seldom do we relate the term to ourselves and our own homes. We should. In every aspect of our daily lives we use hazardous products and then casually throw them into the garbage. Usually without thinking. Without knowing where they will end up.

Hazardous or toxic wastes are materials which can harm people or damage or pollute the land, air or water. Products which are flammable, corrosive, reactive, environmental contaminants or toxic substances are considered to be hazardous or special wastes. Much of the toxic waste that's dumped in landfills is from our own homes. This is where you can be part of the solution.

Take inventory of your home and become aware of the potentially hazardous products you're using or storing.

In the kitchen, look for abrasive powders, air fresheners, solvent based cleaners, ammonia, disinfectants, drain openers, furniture polishes and waxes, lighter fluid, oven cleaners, silver and brass polish, and window cleaners.

The laundry room houses bleach, detergents, spot removers, fabric softeners, starch, water and solvent based rug and upholstery cleaners, and shoe polish.

In the bathroom you might find alcohol based lotions (colognes, etc.), hair dyes, hair perms, nail polish and polish remover, hair sprays, mildew removers, medicines, toilet cleaners, and tub and tile cleaners.

On to the garage where you'll likely find antifreeze, brake and transmission fluid, car batteries, car wax and polishes, autobody filler, gasoline, kerosene, motor oil, windshield washer solution, or swimming pool acids and septic tank degreaser.

Gardening involves products like ant and wasp spray, fungicides, insecticides, and weed killers.

And finally, the workshop or hobby room might have glues, paints, paint thinners and strippers, rust remover, solvents, turpentine, varnish, lacquers, wood preservatives, ammunition, art and craft supplies, gun cleaning solvents, and photographic chemicals.

It's surprising when you realize how many household products can harm our environment. However, solutions are in place for you to take control and become the environmental watchdog in your home. Many of these products require simple care in disposal. Others can be taken to community clean-up programs such as the Toxic Round Up or the Great Drug Round Up.

grams such as the Toxic Round Up or the Great Drug Round Up.

All it takes is shared commitment, awareness and a little time. It's important to take responsibility in your own home because we all live in this world and must take steps to keep it safe. Your actions will protect our environment now and for future generations.

There will be a TOXIC WASTE ROUND UP in Elk Point on Saturday, September 29, 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. at the Elk Point Fire Hall, sponsored by the Elk Point Lioness Club, Elk Point Volunteer Fire Department and Norcen Energy Resources.

Hospital auxiliary reports

By Irene Magnusson

The first Hospital Auxiliary meeting of the season commenced at 8:00 p.m., August 27, in the Elk Point Hospital meeting room, with 10 members present, Gloria Lecopoy in the chair.

Minutes of the June meeting were dealt with, followed by the treasurer's report. Since only the canteen was operated over the summer, not much change was noted.

Violet McFadyen reported on canteen activities, all went well. Again, the need is for knitted or crocheted slippers—all sizes—as these are most called for. Another volunteer to work in the canteen was hoped for—a need possibly to be filled by volunteer students. The Annual Convention will be October 12 and 13 in the Edmonton Convention Centre—a volunteer to attend was requested, but no takers.

Someone to paint a fire hydrant for the Auxiliary has been found. Design will be at her discretion. This is part of the 'Adopt A Hydrant' scheme.

A discussion on whether to participate in Elk Point's Information Night followed, with the decision being not to take part this year.

President Gloria Lecopoy reported some minor changes in the bylaws, and that year-end reporting to Provincial head office must now be done by January 1st, rather than March, as formerly.

It was agreed that the Auxiliary did not have sufficient funds to purchase the equipment suggested as needed by the hospital at this time, an automatic blood pressure testing machine. This item was tabled.

Adella Jennissen reported collections of labels for funds is going well. She puts in a LOT of hours on this effort.

The Regional NW Auxiliary Convention is at Viking, September 14, and it is Elk Point Hospital Auxiliary's turn to give a detailed report on activities during the year. One person volunteered, and secretary Agnes Moroziuk will prepare a list of activities, to deliver.

Tray favors for Thanksgiving were discussed. Meeting adjourned by the Chair, followed by refreshments courtesy of the kitchen staff and the hospital.

DANGEROUS WEAPON

It's a handy tool to have when you're building a new fence or expanding a corral. It can also get you into deep trouble. Remember, there are more than 150,000 miles of buried facilities in Alberta — gas lines, high pressure pipelines, telephone and electric cables and more. And a good portion are located in rural Alberta, very possibly under your property.

Please, before you dig, call Alberta 1st Call at 1-800-242-3447. One Call could save your life!
